The Splendor of Truth: Encyclical Letter of John Paul II by John Paul II, Pope (1993) Paperback Pope John Paul II

This encyclical letter of Pope John Paul II was written to address the theological and philosophical issues concerning moral theology. At the time, the pope was very concerned about some non-Catholic views that had found their way into Catholic schools and seminaries. The document is divided into the following sections: Introduction Jesus Christ, the true Light that enlightens everyone The purpose of the present encyclical Chapter I Teacher, What good must I do? Christ and the answer to the question about morality Someone came to him... Teacher, what good must I do to have eternal life? There is only one who is good If you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments If you wish to be perfect Come, follow me With God all things are possible Lo, I am with you always, to the close of the age Chapter II Do not be conformed to this world The Church and the discernment of certain tendencies in present-day moral theology Teaching which benefits sound doctrine You will know the truth, and the truth will make you free I. Freedom and Law II. Conscience and Truth III. Fundamental Choice and Specific Kinds of Behavior IV. The Moral Act Chapter III Lest the Cross of Christ be emptied of its power Moral good for the life of the Church and of the world For freedom Christ has set us free Walking in the light Martyrdom, the exaltation of the inviolable holiness of God's law Universal and unchanging moral norms at the service of the person and of society Morality and the renewal of social and political life Grace and obedience to God's law Morality and new evangelization The service of moral theologians Our own responsibilities as pastors Conclusion Mary, Mother of Mercy Notes
