Domenic, the oldest son of a Mafia boss named Tony Lazzari has always refused to get involved in the “family business”. However, when thieves break into Tony’s warehouse and steal a million and a half in drugs and Tony asks Domenic to find out who the thieves are, he reluctantly agrees. He knows what the Don will do to Tony if the thieves strike again.

As Domenic studies the tapes from the outside surveillance camera at his father’s warehouse, he sees the driver hiding his face whenever the camera pans his direction. Could this guy work for his father and this be an inside job? If so, is Aldo, his younger, trigger-happy brother who works in the family business, involved? Soon after Domenic starts putting pieces of the Mafia theft puzzle together he meets Maria, a beautiful Italian woman whom he quickly falls for. The more time he spends with her, the less time he spends hunting down the drug thieves. Will he save his father’s life by finding out who the thieves are before they strike again or will time run out?
